Reasons for going to university

You should now be thinking about what you are intending to do after completing your A-Levels. While some of you may be intending to seek employment or an apprenticeship, the majority of you will be applying for university or other higher education courses. It is very important that you prepare your HE application carefully because the decisions you make will affect the next three or four years of your lives and, possibly, beyond.

There are many reasons for going to university:

- Increase potential earnings and improve career prospects [Over the course of a lifetime, estimates suggest women can expect to earn about £250,000 more if they have a degree, while the figure is roughly £170,000 for men. Source: Institute for Fiscal Studies, 2017].
- Social and cultural reasons - broaden your horizons and your ways of looking at the world.
- Exciting opportunities to live/ study/ work abroad or spend a year in industry or do an internship – all excellent additions to your CV.
- Academic challenge - broaden and deepen your interests and knowledge.
- Personal challenge - develop self-confidence, responsibility, independence, initiative...
- It can also be immense fun and you'll make lifelong friends!
